

THE COMPOSURE CUP

A Live Team Competition on Fluency & Composure

3 Teams

3 Rounds

1 Champion

Fillers, composure & confidence under pressure

Three Rounds. One Champion.

The journey from first filler to final applause

ROUND 1

Filler Bomb

One speaker. Two teams hunting for fillers. Loud, fast, no mercy.

One student speaks for 30 seconds on a silly topic you call out on the spot.

The Twist: The other two teams are the “Bomb Squad.” The instant the speaker says a filler (um, uh, like, basically, so) — everyone shouts “BOOM!”

+15

Zero BOOMs — clean run

+10

2 or fewer BOOMs — survived

-5

per BOOM — instant, no debate

Rotate the speaker through all 3 teams before moving to Round 2.

Freeze Face-Off

Two students. Eye contact. Whoever cracks first, loses.

One student from each of two teams stands facing the other in a composure pose — good posture, steady eye contact, relaxed hands. The 3rd team judges.

The Twist: Their own teammates get 20 seconds to try to break them — jokes, faces, random comments (no touching!) — while the two in the middle must hold still and composed.

+15

Per face-off won — stayed composed the longest

Per face-off — style bonus from the judging team

Round robin: 3 face-offs — A vs B, B vs C, A vs C. Each team competes twice and judges once. Points from both of a team's face-offs add up (max 40).

ROUND 3

Sudden Death Finale

One finalist per team. Same prompt. The whole room decides the winner.

Each team nominates one finalist. All three answer the same prompt (e.g. “Tell me about a time you were nervous”), one after another, 45 seconds each — no fillers, good eye contact with the room.

The Vote: The two teams not speaking vote by a show of hands on: fewest fillers, best eye contact/posture, and most confident finish.

- Why cats are better than dogs
- My morning routine
- The worst food ever
- Tell me about a time you were nervous
- A skill I want to learn

Calls to Make

“BOOM confirmed!” → -5 points, announce total out loud

“Froze it!” → +15 to the composed student's team

“Style bonus to ...” → +5 for best posture in that face-off

“Hands up for ...” → run the Sudden Death vote by show of hands

Remember: Keep it loud, keep it fast, announce every score immediately. Your energy sets the room's energy.
